

On Being a Twilighter
by Christie Speich

You know you're a Twilighter when your eyes focus on anything black and red and you just can't get Edward out of your head.
You check out the best fan sites for news, and then your cell phone plays "Bella's Lullaby" again, so you rush to see what Michael Sheen's tweet said.
You replace Bella's name with your own instead,
when you write fan fiction with your Twilight pen.
You hope Carlisle - rather, Edward - will bite and that you'll have special vampire powers.
"I may not be a human, but I am a man"
is just one of many quotes you can recite.
And now you have spent hours upon hours writing the sonnet of being a twi-fan.